Excerpt: . . . and the future to other business men who are, perhaps, also on the verge of doing the same thing. Not in any way minimizing the crisis which the world now faces, without ignoring the fact that a long, expensive war in Europe will result in a great deterioration of values and a tremendous adjustment of commerce and finance when it is over, there is nevertheless sufficient ground for believing that this country is going on, that the manufacture and consumption of goods will continue, and the manufacturers who are enterprising, alert and far-sighted enough to take advantage of existing and new markets to push their business as they would in ordinary times, are going to benefit. The point is that the war will either end everything in the world or it will not. If it does not, business among other things, must go on. In our own country it must go on now. It cannot wait until the war is over. In this country there are a hundred million of us who must live and who must buy all the things that make life possible, and somebody is going to supply these things, There are very few articles that we cannot make or produce. We have now an opportunity to find out what we can do. All of these new resources will develop business and that activity which ultimately results in good times. Every manufacturer who has been in the habit of advertising and...
